

Groundwater management in Ethiopia

In the Dira Dawe area of Ethiopia, an isotope study revealed that an aquifer recharged at higher elevations away from the populated region is the most suitable for development.

With the assistance of the IAEA, the Ethiopian National Groundwater Database has been developed and is in operation.

