

Groundwater contamination in Santiago, Chile

Isotopes showed that leakages from sewage drains at specific locations are causing groundwater contamination. Using this information, vulnerability maps for water supply management are being developed.

